An Aging and Disability Resource Center

Services Provided: Information and Assistance program is an access point for obtaining information regarding services in the community that are available to seniors and disabled adults. Staff will provide information, advocacy, and screening to determine appropriate referrals, or the need for case management services. Aging and Long Term Care can help seniors and disabled adults access such services as housing, finding a care provider, home delivered meals, foot care, transportation, legal services, and more. Case Management assists older and disabled adults who receive Medicaid supported in-home services. We provide a comprehensive needs assessment, service plan development, and assistance in managing services and monitoring. Family Caregiver Support provides assistance to the unpaid family caregivers in the community. The services include counseling, a support group, Respite services, caregiver training, minor home modification, and medical equipment.

Catholic Charities Walla Walla offers a variety of programming and services designed to meet specific social needs of individuals, families and children in the Walla Walla region. These services are available to all people regardless of religion, ethnicity, or economic status yet there are eligibility requirements for some programs.

Services Provided: Counseling (Mental Health): The counseling program provides services for individuals, couples, families, children, and adolescents designed to enhance the viability and strength of the family system. We utilize a sliding fee schedule, based on income and household size, to determine client's cost but will see clients regardless of ability to pay. We serve 20 to 40 per month. Volunteer Chore Services: This program provides essential transportation, light housekeeping, yard work and other chores to low-income seniors and adults with disabilities through the assistance from volunteers. Housing Services: Catholic Charities sponsors a service-enriched apartment complex, the Garden Court/Mike Foye apartments, for seniors and persons with disabilities. Rent is based upon residents adjusted income. Immigration Services: This program assists with basic immigration for families and individuals. A sliding fee schedule, based on income and household size, can be utilized. A bilingual Spanish and English speaking staff person is available. Diaper and Layette Assistance – This program assists families by providing diapers and other supplies such as baby clothes, blankets and quilts on a limited basis. Clients are welcome to receive material assistance once every thirty days. Referral needed through Helpline, area hospital, the YWCA, or Birthright. Items are donated by Catholic Daughters of America, Assumption Church Women, St. Mark's Altar Society, Knights of Columbus and others.

In 1994, the Washington State Legislature enacted the Youth Violence Reduction Act that formed Community Public Health and Safety Networks throughout the state to plan, implement, fund and monitor activities designed to reduce problem behaviors of children and families in each locale. The Walla Walla Community Network boundary was established by resolution of the County Commissioners in 1995. All citizens living within the county lines, with the exception of Burbank (a part of the Franklin County Network), are members of the Walla Walla Community Network. The 23 board members are selected and recruited through a community process. These volunteer board positions are designed to reflect a broad representation of the citizens of the county (13 non-fiduciary - with no vested interest), and agency representatives (10 fiduciary). As it is the intent of the legislature to have strong citizen participation; members are actively recruited from parent groups, neighborhood organizations and youth groups and are selected on the basis of their interest in community issues and their concern for healthy families.

Cindy Abbott, Supervisor

The Division of Developmental Disabilities (DDD) is part of the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) and Aging and Disabilities and Administration (ADSA). DDD assists individuals with developmental disabilities and their families to obtain services and supports based on individual preferences, capabilities and needs. DDD uses state and federal funds to provide or purchase supports and services for eligible persons and their families. Resources are limited and needed services may or may not be available. Development disabilities include mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism, and neurological or other condition similar to mental retardation (including developmental delay). An individual with a developmental disability may be eligible for DDD services when the onset of the disability occurred before age 18, the disability is expected to continue indefinitely, and the disability resulted in substantial limitations to the person's adaptive functioning.

Services Provided: Case Management: If you are determined DDD eligible, you will be assigned a case resource manager to assist you and your family to identify interests and support needs, coordinate planning and development of resources; and monitor service delivery. Medicaid/Waiver Personal CARE (MPC/WPC): MPC/WPC services include supervision or hands-on assistance with personal care tasks for individuals that meet functional and financial eligibility criteria. This assistance is provided in the persons own home, and adult family home (AFH), or an adult residential care center (ARC). MPC is a service provided under the Medicaid State Plan and is available to persons who meet the functional and financial eligibility criteria of the Categorically Need Program (CNP). Employment: Ongoing support services and training for eligible persons to obtain and maintain paid jobs in a variety of settings and worksites. May include individual or group options in the community or prevocational services to help people move towards employment. Community Access: Activities, special assistance, advocacy and education to help eligible persons age 62 and older participate actively in their community. Infant Toddler Early Intervention Program: Early intervention services, including family resources coordination, for eligible children from birth to age 3 and their families. Individual & Family Services Program: Provides an array of services to families to help maintain and stabilize the family unit. Services include respite care, therapies, architectural/vehicular modifications, and specialized equipment and supplies. Foster Care: Voluntary placement in foster care, under certain circumstances, for children under age 18. Residential Services: Services and supports in a variety of settings to assist the person to live independently in the community. These may be offered in the person's home through certified providers or individuals, or in licensed settings. The level of support services is based on individual needs, and varies from a few hours per month up to 24 hours per day. Residential Habilitation Centers (RHC): Five state-operated residential facilities provide intensive services for persons needing a high level of nursing care or skill development. Respite and other specialized services may be available to persons living in the community.

Mark Brown, Executive Director

Friends of Children Walla Walla was formed by a group of community leaders that coalesced around a strong concern for young persons in the Walla Walla Valley. Begun in 1999, the organization built its services upon the concept that a safe, consistent relationship with a caring adult outside the home can help a young person negotiate the developmental challenges that all youth inevitably face. By nurturing a child's strengths and self-esteem, the friendship reduces the child's vulnerability to risk factors. From the inception of this home-grown, local, non-profit mentoring organization, there has been a commitment to screening, training and ongoing support of adult volunteers as well as a focus on creating an appropriate match of adult and child. Since the first Friends "match" was made in 1999, fully 400 children have been served in the program, and there are currently over 110 active matches supported by the organization. Within the past two years, Friends has added a new, exciting program to its traditional, Community-Based (CB) services. While the latter is built on a one-year commitment from an adult who sees their matched young friend weekly, one-on-one in the community, the new ABC (Adults Befriending Children) Program requires a commitment lasting a school year, and all contacts take place on school grounds during school time. Together, the two programs form a solid approach to mentoring young persons in the Walla Walla Valley.

Services Provided: Friends matches an adult volunteer with a young person to spend at least one hour together each week. Matches are based on parent preferences and the staff's best professional judgment regarding all available information about the adult volunteer and child, considerations for interests, unique needs, and expectations of all participants.

Number Served: 150 children

Target Group: Friends serves children aged 6-17, and adult volunteers in the Walla Walla Valley, regardless of gender, ethnicity, cultural background, religious beliefs, sexual orientation, or socio-economic status.

Mary Meinig, Director

The independent Office of the Family and Children's Ombudsman (OFCO) is a state office, located within the Office of the Governor, that responds to citizens, relatives, and service providers when they believe that the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) or another governmental agency has not responded appropriately to their concern regarding a child in need of state protection, or a family or child involved with the state because of child abuse or neglect issues. It is OFCO's mission to protect children and families from potentially harmful acts or omissions by governmental agencies, as well as to ensure that agency officials and state policy makers are made aware of chronic problems in the child protection and welfare system so they can improve state services. OFCO fulfills its mission by intervening in situations where it has determined that an agency's act or omission has placed the safety, well-being or interests of a child or family at risk of clear harm and by investigating workers actions and systemic issues that potentially are having a harmful impact on children and families. At the conclusion of an investigation, OFCO may mediate a resolution, recommend that an agency take specific action, or it may propose corrections to existing law, policies or procedures to agency officials, the Governor, or to the Legislature.

Services Provided: Complaint investigation case monitor/review, reporting on critical incidents.

Target Group: At risk children; families involved with the state due to child abuse and neglect issues
